MESSAGE FROM FOUNDING PRINCIPAL KEVIN LOPEZ

We are thrilled to introduce you to a new CTE and Student Pathways NYC Public High School: The Motion Picture Technical High School, opening its doors in September 2024 in Northern Queens. Our school aims to be a nurturing ground for young aspiring filmmakers, media designers, and skilled technicians, equipping them with the tools, insights, and network needed to thrive in the evolving landscape of film and television.

While the limelight often falls on actors, writers, directors, and producers, the magic of film and television thrives on the dedication and craftsmanship of "below-the-line" professionals. These are the vital roles—ranging from cinematographers and sound engineers to editors and production designers—that breathe life into every production. In collaboration with the Roybal School of Film and Television Fund, Motion Picture Tech is dedicated to forging a more inclusive and equitable future for the world of film and television production.

Our mission at Motion Picture Tech is to ensure that students gain unparalleled access to mentoring from industry professionals, coveted work-based learning internships, and an immersive learning environment that offers early college credit and credentials, mirroring real-world industry demands.

We are hosting a series of virtual open houses in October and November for 8th graders applying to NYC High Schools before the December 1st deadline. For a list of dates and to sign up for our Motion Picture Tech virtual info sessions, please visit our website at www.motionpicturehs.org.

Thank you for considering a journey with Motion Picture Technical High School. We are excited about the stories we will tell, the lessons we will learn, and the legacy we will create together.

Proudly,

Kevin A. Lopez
